Within this book is chronicled the progress of an expanding Southern which has risen meteorically to a position of national prominence. We have attempted to record some of the spirit of collegiate life here on the campus, where students from all over the world meet, live and learn.

In Dedication

It is with a deep sense of grateful appreciation that we dedicate this, our 1950 INTERLACHEN to those two, who in the past quarter of a century have made the name of Florida Southern College great.

To our President, Dr. Ludd Myrl Spivey who since his inauguration in 1925 has kept before him a vision that through years of trials and tribulations has remained undimmed; to his good and gracious wife Louise, who has traveled the long road with him and has seen the vision with him; we the students of this great college respectfully wish them well and give them our humble thanks.

DR. AND MRS. LUDD M. SPIVEY

President's Message

The task of gathering and publishing the material for the Inter-lachen is a difficult one. The Editors, Business Managers and their assistants deserve high praise. They have performed well.

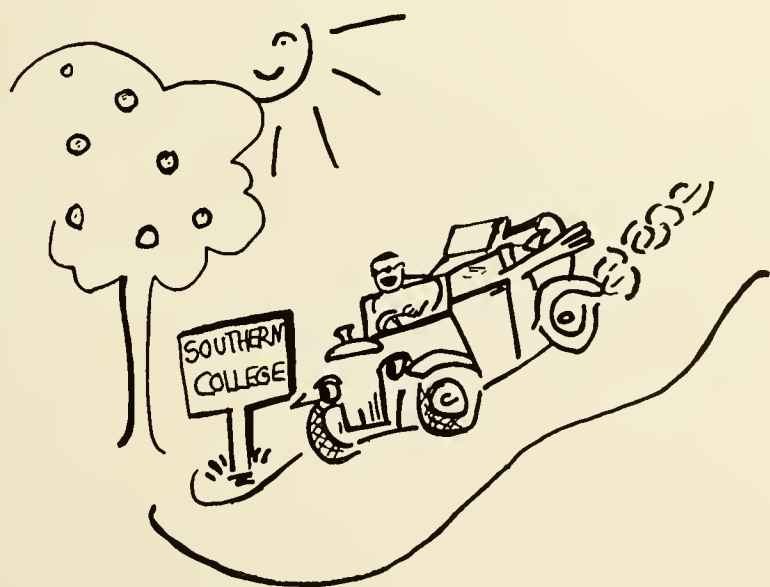

Each student should keep this book permanently. In the years to come, it will be of added interest. The actual persons and events registered here will change. After the years have passed, you will enjoy seeing the contrast between the present and the past.

To the Sophomores and Juniors, I want to wish you a happy vacation. Unless you have special reasons, you should not remain in college during the summer. You need a change. Give what information you have gained an opportunity to incubate. I hope to see you this fall.

Most of the Seniors have been here four years. Now you are leaving for good. We will miss you. May the big world receive you cordially. You still belong to us. You are merely joining a larger campus. My blessing and good wishes go with you.

25 years of Progress

When President Alderman retired from Florida Southern College in 1925 he said to the trustees:
"Let me urge you to be very careful in the selection of a man to be president of your college. He will have many difficult duties to perform. Just being popular in the conference or a good pastor will not meet the requirements. He must be an educator and one familiar with the present day problems of school administration. He must be a business man with a personality that will enable him to get hold of business and professional men. He must love the college and have faith that will give him a venturesome spirit. It will take this and other qualities to build a college in this day and time."

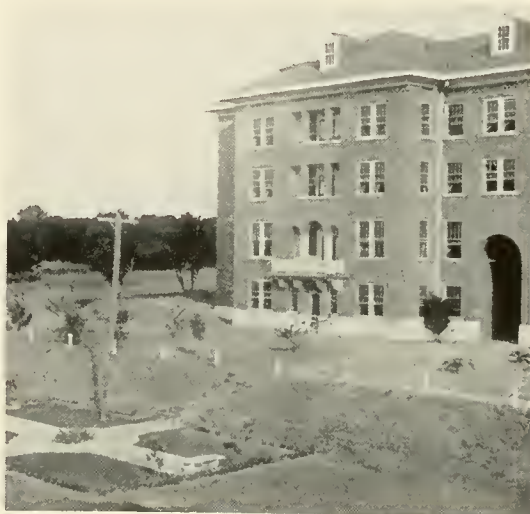

Dr. Ludd M. Spivey has fulfilled this wish in every way possible. For with his arrival at Southern a period of memorable progress began.....

Assuming the presidency in the summer of 1925, Dr. Spivey found Southern to be a far cry from the college that we know today. The two major buildings on the campus were Social Hall (Edge Hall) and Joseph Reynolds. He began his administration in a vigorous manner, inspiring confidence immediately and filling the people around him with admiration for his intelligent aggressiveness and optimistic spirit. Even the approaching depression and boom collapse failed to dim his hope for the future of Florida Southern College.

The first problem that confronted Dr. Spivey was raising money to relieve the heavy indebtedness of the college. Before long he had his million-dollar campaign underway. Instead of raising $1,000,000 the campaigners were able to increase the amount to $1,200,000. However, this total represented subscriptions, for the most part in estate notes. Tragically enough, the Florida land boom collapsed and the bottom fell out of this plan. About ten percent of the amount subscribed was collected. Dr. Spivey was able to salvage enough from this fund to build a two story brick dormitory, which today houses the music school.

Facts about Southern 1926-1935

There were three hundred and ninety-six students enrolled during the regular session of 1925-26. By September 1927 enrollment increased to four hundred forty-six. This impressive increase was received as ample evidence of Dr. Spiwey's ability as a builder and as an educator.

The faculty for 1926-27 had included thirty-six men and women, an increase of sixteen over the previous year, and three more instructors were recommended for appointment.

One thousand and thirty-nine books had been added to the library, and fifty-four magazines had been received regularly. Many of the books were donations from faculty members, students and friends of the college.

Enthusiastically supporting athletics Dr. Spiwey selected Coach James R. Haygood, a former quarterback on the Vanderbilt University team, to put Southern's football team into shape. He did much to build up Southern athletics in the mind of the public. He died suddenly in 1935.

The new athletic field was dedicated October 23, 1926. A football game followed with Erskine College resulting in a 29 to 0 victory for Florida Southern.

1928 enrollment at Southern jumped to 827. This unprecedented increase in the student body placed F.S.C. third among the thirty-one colleges operating under the control of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Despite the stringency of the times, Dr. Spivey was able to report that his third year at F.S.C. ended without a deficit. He has always been able to keep this record.

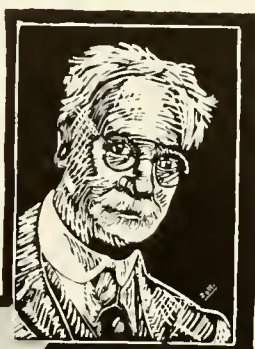

The honor walk was conceived by Dr. Spivey and was dedicated in 1931. The intention was that the walk should do honor to one outstanding student from each graduating class, and that one stone should be added each year.

In May, 1932, Allan Spivey, the seven year old son of Dr. and Mrs. Spivey succumbed to rabies the night before graduation. The body of the little boy, who was a favorite among all, lay in state in the drawing room.

Southern celebrated its golden jubilee in March, 1935.

The beautiful painting which hangs over the mantle of the drawing room in Joseph-Reynolds Hall was created by George Inness Jr., one of America's finest landscape painters. This work of art was painted just for the spot in which it hangs and it was presented to the college as an expression of Mr. Inness interest in our school.

THE CROSSROADS OF THE CAMPUS

1937 was a busy year on F.S.C.'s Campus. During that year three buildings were constructed; the President's home, the Gilbert Gymnasium, and the Frank D. Jackson Student Activity Building.

The Hindu Temple was brought from the holy city of Hinduism. Benares, India, by the late Dr. Frederick B. Fisher. It was erected during the summer of 1938 on a slope overlooking Lake Hollingsworth in memorial to Dr. Fisher. The temple traveled 15,575 miles before it arrived at its final resting place in the Garden of Meditation.

It was Dr. Fisher's wish that the temple be erected in the Garden of Meditation, hoping that it become a spiritual Mecca for his friends of all races and religions. After visiting Southern's campus Dr. Fisher knew that he found the perfect setting for his precious temple. Amid the citrus trees, hibiscus, palms, oleanders, lotus and jasmine the Hindu Temple stands today, symbolic to those who are in search of the truth.

"NOTE TO STUDENTS"

There is a very interesting legend in connection with the sacred cow. It seems that every night at 10:30 the right foot of the cow becomes warm and all those who touch it and make a wish will be rewarded. How much easier this is than studying for examinations.

Built in 1938, the Little Theater is the Campus home of Vagabond rehearsals and open-house productions. This year the Little Theater was completely redecorated and now serves a triple function, not only as a stage for campus drama productions, but as a classroom for audio-visual education and a student cinema in the evening.

The art building, formerly a skating rink, is located in the "middle campus" area. Under the direction of Miss Donna Stoddard, the art department is rapidly expanding, offering courses ranging from sculpturing to elementary crafts.

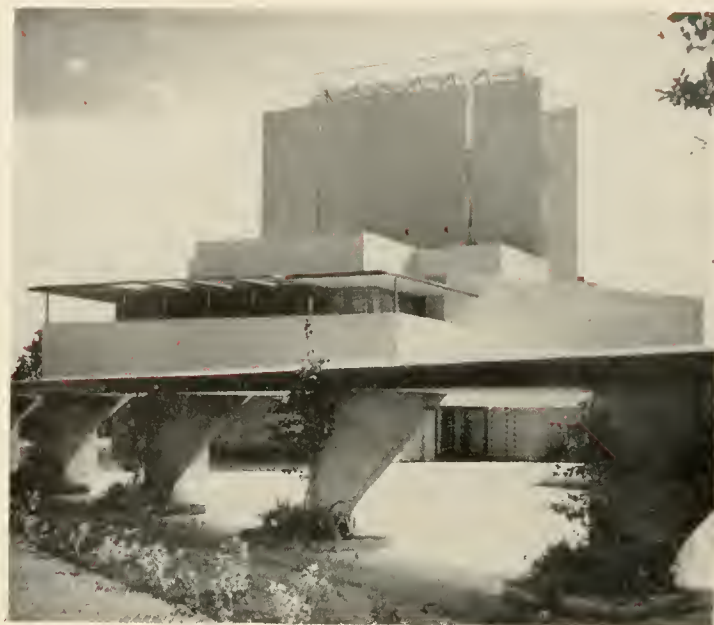

Both men and women students put on their dungarees and offered their services during the construction of the Annie Pfeiffer Chapel. The idea behind student labor was to give the students a feeling of having helped to build our college.

AMERICA'S MOST CELEBRATED ARCHITECT CREATES AN UNPARALLELED CAMPUS GROUPING

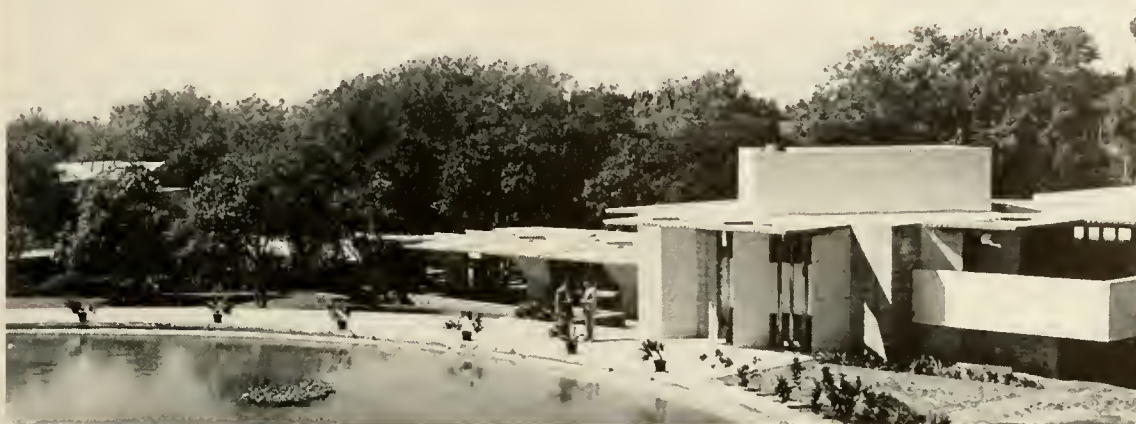

“EVERY building is out of the ground, into the light; a child of the sun.” These words casually spoken to me by Frank Lloyd Wright made an indelible impression upon my mind. Watching the buildings from day to day as they grow makes one understand that these buildings are organic structures, belonging to the very earth on which they stand. Because of the intimacy between the various materials of the buildings, there is a unity of purpose created in the people who live, work or worship in them. Mr. Wright does not distinguish between a form that is useful and esthetic. If the design is useful, it is, at the same time, esthetic.

Of the nineteen unit foundation designed by Mr. Wright for Florida Southern College, we now have completed the theme structure, consisting of the chapel, library, administration building, waterdome, and the three seminars. These buildings are boldly asymmetrical in layout, unified by connecting esplanades. One does not have to be an artist to see the variety that flourishes through the inherent rhythm of materials and workmanship. Body and mind are in tune with that rhythm and the variety encourages the spirit. Buildings planned by Mr. Wright are not just another construction job, as can readily be understood by examining the photographs on these pages. Each small part of the wonderfully integrated whole is a design of unquestionable merit. The whole scheme is given an outdoor garden character, suitable for Florida. The buildings do not crowd each other and each has its own stretch of esplanade and intervening trees. Because nature has been definitely considered in the planning, Mr. Wright's buildings blend with the landscaping. Flowers and plants grow inside of the buildings as well as on the outside. The outdoors comes in and makes itself at home and likewise invites you to do the same.

Many additional structures will be raised in the next few years, among them, buildings devoted to Art, Science, Music, Home Economics and the Theater. The project is located in a sixty-three-acre orange grove and will occupy the western section of the campus.

Buildings are no longer considered as mere walls and a roof, but rather as the space within. That is the reality of these buildings. The walls are screens, and the roof does not shut out the sun, the moon and the stars. It represents the things to which we must look for enrichment. These buildings are so interesting and alive you never have the feeling that you are alone. Mr. Wright has shown us here his theory that architecture is the scientific art of making structures express ideas. A work of art is only a work of art when it lives in some experience. Materials belong to all the world. The artist simply re-issues it and the article becomes new. Materials suggest designs. The terrain itself suggests movement and lines. Mr. Wright does not impose designs upon materials.

The Annie Pfeiffer Chapel is a structure of character, showing Mr. Wright's independence of building design. The chapel is not a conventional religious form, and it strikes a new clarity, the chord between Florida character and beauty and the life of our young people. It has a tall tower that gives an open-to-the-sky feeling. It is filled with flowers that climb the trellises. A combination of the elements and the principles of nature make the chapel a human thing. When the excavation for this building was begun in 1939, Mr. Wright planned to use the very sand up-carthed to mould the blocks that were to go into the building. Dr. Ludd M. Spivey, President of Florida Southern College, conceived the idea of this unusual chapel in 1937. The completed chapel was dedicated in 1941. When Mr. Wright saw the chapel for the first time in 1942 he said, "It lives, it has an atmosphere of life, there isn't a dead spot in it. It is something that grew in this orange grove, a flower of the human spirit and it will endure, gathering force and distinction as the years go on. Florida has found an expression in building in her proper name."

THE WATERDOME: A lovely pool, deriving its name from the shape formed by cascading columns of spray which create a canopy from the rim. The Administration Building borders its edge.

In the chapel there are no aisles dividing the congregation. The speaker feels he is one of you. No one in the entire auditorium, which seats one thousand people, is more than fifty feet from the speaker even in the balconies. He ceases to be a man set apart. The acoustics is especially fine. Plants grow on the ledges and in flower boxes tucked into corners of recessed walls. There are trellises overhanging the audience on which boughs of trees are placed for festive occasions.

One visitor who came into the chapel at the hour when the sun was low enough to sift light through the small colored glass inserts in the block structure said, "I feel as if I am standing within a huge jewel box." It was the desire of Dr. Spivey to allow some of the students to take time off from their classes to learn a useful trade by working on the buildings. They moulded fourteen thousand blocks by special patterns and laid more than forty-six hundred of them. A few of the skills required in making one of these buildings are glass setting, foundation layout, steel work, welding, concrete mixing, pouring and plastering.

The chapel and the library provide two nuclei for the whole foundation. All of the buildings have an airy and "Floridian" character. There is emphasis on patterns of light and shade. Color of the buildings inside, as out, is a warm tan, lighter on the plain surfaces.

There is a spacious feeling as one walks out of the chapel onto a great plaza that joins the chapel and the library. It is edged by stoas or columns and a covered esplanade which enables one to walk from building to building protected from the sun and the rain. When the project is finished there will be over a mile and a half of this esplanade designed on diagonals through the orange grove. One outside corner of the E. T. Roux library suggests a dense forest the way the esplanade columns are grouped with light filtering through a beautifully patterned opening to the sky. In the reading room the student is surrounded by books and does not feel that the walls shut him out from the world. The stacks are light with sunshine pouring down from above by means of light wells even into the basement. A unique feature of the library is that the reading room is round, with tables at different levels following the contour. They serve both as study desks and shelves for reference books. Stairs in these buildings have a ribbon-like quality, very thin and suspended in space with the only supports being vertical rails. The rise of the steps is very slight so that one moves easily upstairs and down without much effort. There is no wasted space. A double columned walkway with openings to the sky that suggests the pattern of the flower beds below leads one to perhaps the most extraordinary buildings on the campus, the Administration Building, consisting of the Emile E. Watson and the Benjamin Fine units. The horizontal lines of these buildings makes them seem to belong to the earth where they stand. From the outside one could hardly believe the amount of space consumed. The various offices of the Administration Building are so designed that they give spirit to those who work in them. Workers feel much more alive than in the old-time office that is cramped by four walls. Tall, slim windows lending light and air extend from first to second floors. There is an accent on textures in this building. Especially with the brightly polished metals and those turned green for color accent on the edges of the broad overhanging eaves which are verdigris bands of copper detailed to drip so that no gutters are needed. The entire plan has charm and distinction.

Beside the Administration Building is the J. Edgar Wall Waterdome, one of the most attractive features of the plan. It is called a waterdome because the dome is formed by a water spray in this very large round pool. The three seminar buildings have sky lights. The walls are made of colored glass blocks sculptured in effect. There are two offices and one large classroom in each.

Those that come to see these buildings with closed minds, may not see a work of art, for these buildings have not lived for them in some experience. To quote from Dr. Spivey, "This architecture struggles to bring us back to earth and make us appreciate our world."

J. Edgar Wall Water Dome dedicated in 1948.

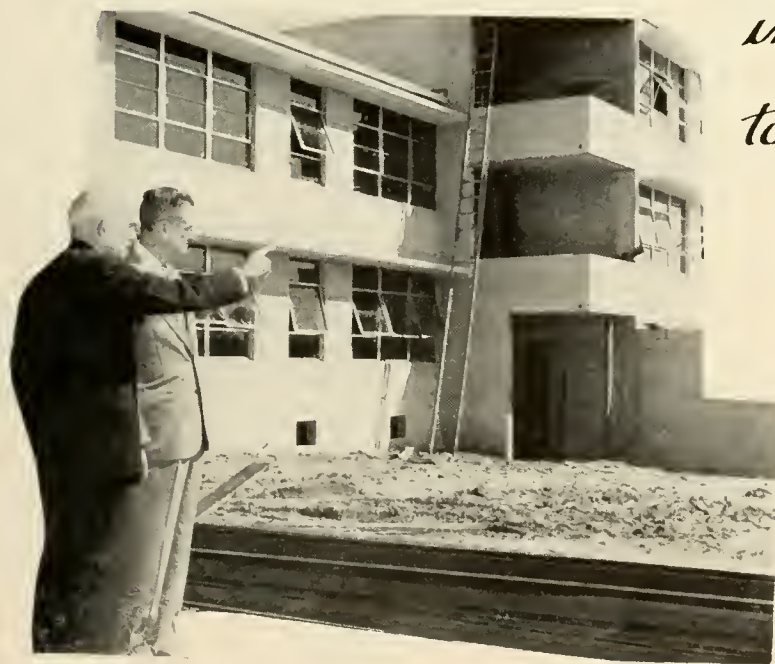

This unit was designed by Robert Law Weed, a prominent architect from Miami. He has designed many of the beautiful homes in Fort Lauderdale and Miami and was also the architect for the University of Miami.

The project consists of eighteen buildings, eight of which are used by the men students. There are nine apartment units with four apartments in each. Of these, four are used by Delta Zeta, Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Chi Omega, and Alpha Omicron Pi-sororities. The remaining six are taken by faculty members and married students.

The East campus covers approximately twenty acres of land, from MacDonald Street to Lake Hollingsworth and from the "middle campus" bordering on Ingraham Avenue. These lovely modern buildings completely transformed a section of overgrown vacant lots. The Lakeland Ledger remarked that the first night the lights burned in the dormitory windows it looked like a city in itself a city come to life almost over night.

The latest addition to Southern's campus is an esplanade joining the Seminars and the Annie Pfeiffer Chapel. But this is still only the beginning. During this twenty-five year period our school has been transformed from a poor, struggling, rather unknown and unimportant college to a widely known, prosperous, and meaningful center of learning and culture. Through the advancement of these twenty-five years we face a bright future with confidence and with the assurance of greater accomplishment in the field of public and private service.

Furman Finck, winner of the National Academy of New York in 1945, and the Worcester Award in 1947, first met President Spivey at Temple University in 1949. His first impression of Dr. Spivey was that he was an excellent subject for a painting. When asked if he were inspired he said, "I found Dr. Spivey among the most inspiring of all the people who have ever posed for me. He stimulated the atmosphere by his distillation of thought so much so that concentration on the portrait became difficult." The special qualities that the artist tried to accentuate in the painting were: President Spivey the leader, a man of vision a builder, and a philosopher.

Boris Blai, Dean of the Stella Elkins Tyler School of Fine Arts of Temple University, first met President

Spivey in Philadelphia and found himself immediately under the spell of his personality. In Dr. Spivey, Dean Blai discovered a spiritual man, a thinker, an educator, and a great humanitarian. Dean Blai explains, "In the sculptured portrait of President Spivey I have tried to portray through the medium every expression that the man possessed. Through my understanding and of a better life through education. I feel I have succeeded. This is the way I saw him while he was not really posing, merely expressing ideas, talking to us. With the language of sculpture this portrait is my expression of the man I think so much of as the President of this great institution and my friend."

In dedicating this angel to President Spivey Dean Blai said, "The angel is my dedication to President Spivey's greatness, and my thanks for the privilege of knowing him. He has had great influence in my being able to make the angel the greatest piece I have done this year."

The Board of Trustees of Florida Southern College is composed of capable men and women interested in the students and in the promotion of the college. The members represent many different walks of life and therefore are more fully qualified to administer the affairs of the school. The board, with Dr. Spivey, works hard in keeping our college one of the top schools in the nation.

It sets up the budget, supervises the investments and endowments, and other financial interests of the college. Each member is elected for a term of three years after which he may succeed himself if reelected; two members, J. Edgar Wall and L. N. Pipkin, have each served over thirty years. Their duties also include electing the administrative officers and faculty each year.

We in the student body appreciate the great part which the board plays in making our institution one of which we can all be proud.

This Division encompasses not only the Fine Arts, but also the applied Arts. Students have a wide choice of courses in Arts and Crafts, Home Economics, Industrial Arts, Music, Music Education and Theory. Continued interest in the subjects offered in this Division has resulted in installation of new instructional facilities and a greater variety of courses.

Art Classes such as this have field trips as part of the classwork.

In a modern and completely equipped shop, students design and build as they learn.

Here girls learn how to duplicate Mom's "home-cookin'" on modern equipment.

To the student interested in music Southern offers an unusually broad selection of courses.

Humanities

Florida Southern College, being a Methodist institution, has placed great emphasis on its courses in the Humanities. This division offers numerous courses to students majoring in English, Journalism, Speech, Radio, Drama, Languages, Philosophy, Religion, and Religious Education. The primary aim of this division is to endow each student with a good practical and moral foundation, that each may take his place in society.

In such informal classes as this, language students gain practical as well as grammatical knowledge of their language.

Student worship services give Religion majors valuable experience as well as provide fellowship and recreation.

Journalism students apply their classroom knowledge to writing for school publications and country-wide press releases.

Speech, Radio, and Drama students receive valuable training and experience in this section of Southern's curriculum.

Science

In a world in which so much emphasis is being laid upon scientific training, Southern has developed a broad curriculum in the theoretical and applied sciences. Excellent foundational and advanced training is offered to students in Biology, Chemistry, Physics, Mathematics, and Citrus Culture.

Extensive laboratory equipment is available for Chemistry students plus materials for independent research.

Pre-engineering students experiment with Engineering principles in Southern's Physics laboratories.

Mathematics students find a wide variety of courses, basic and advanced to help prepare them for Engineering and allied subjects.

Citrus students here study some of the diseases of Citrus trees. In other courses, students are offered field courses in Botany and Zoology, as well as Bacteriology, Histology, and Anatomy for Pre-Med students.

Social Studies

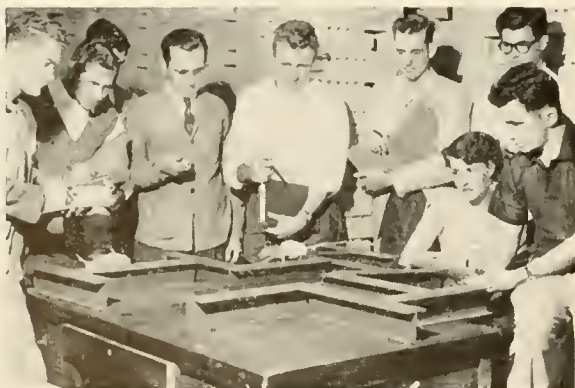

In order to acquaint students with civilizations past and present, they may take advantage of courses offered in the following departments: Business Administration, Secretarial, Economics, Physical and Political Science, Education, Physical Education, Psychology, History, and Sociology.

Courses are offered in Typing, Shorthand, Accounting, Bookkeeping, Marketing, and allied subjects for students in Business Administration.

Students of Education gain valuable experience interning in various schools throughout the state in their Senior year.

Students have a chance to test and experiment with principles of psychology in Southern's Psychology laboratories.

Ample equipment and excellent instruction give students of History and Political Science background for their studies.

Who's Who Among American Universities and Colleges

Who's Who Among American Universities and Colleges is a yearly publication which represents approximately 615 American Universities and Colleges. This organization incorporates a nationwide honor program, an annually-published student directory of over 1000 pages, a placement service through which members may request recommendation for employment or admission to graduate school. Candidates from Florida Southern College are selected for their leadership, scholarship, and service to the school by student-faculty vote.

FOUNDERS WEEK

Portico Club brings Honor Walk up to date. Pictured are Portico members Ned Hill, Lindsey Bergen, and workmen from the Eyman Monument Co.

Snap Shots of Founder's Week

FEBRUARY 26 — MARCH 5

Southern's biggest and best Founder's Week started off on Sunday, Feb. 26, with Open House by all fraternities and sororities on the campus. Each house was decorated in the theme and spirit of this anniversary celebration. On Monday, things really got under way with the parade to Lake Mirror and the coronation of Miss Southern on the west shore. The big event of Tuesday was the Investiture of Seniors. On Wednesday, the Circus and Auto Thrill Show were presented on the campus. In the evening, "Everyman" was staged at Mayhall Auditorium. Friday was a big day with the ground-breaking of the new Industrial Arts and Home Economics building, dedication of the new columns, and the convocation address by Frank Lloyd Wright. With teas, receptions, and other functions, little time was left for classes, and a sort of "intellectual moratorium" was declared during the festivities.

The publication of a yearbook is no easy task, even under the best of conditions, and when complications do arise they snarl up everything in their way. The 1950 INTERLACHEN, despite many obstacles, is at last published, and Editor and Staff alike breathe a large sigh of relief.

Interlachen Staff

The main emphasis of the book this year was an attempt to modernize it, and at the same time present that fabled "campus cross-section." Much credit is due to the hard-working members of the staff who made this book possible. Gallons of midnight oil were burned, and countless cartons of cigarettes were consumed way into the wee small hours as the staff labored to get the book out on time. Paraphrasing the old saying, "for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, here is your 1950 INTERLACHEN."

Future Teachers of America

Future Teachers of America, or "FTA", as it is commonly known here on the campus, is the largest student organization at Southern, numbering nearly 300 active members. The chapter here at Southern was founded in 1938, and was the first chapter established in Florida. It is the third largest chapter in the United States, and the largest in institutions not primarily dedicated to teacher training. Membership is composed of those students studying to become teachers. It was organized to give the student a better understanding of the aims and ideals of the teaching profession. The organization is affiliated with the National Education Association.

Florida Gamma

Florida Gamma of SAE was first formed on the campus of Florida Southern College as a local, Rho Epsilon Chi, in the spring of 1947. It was founded by four faculty members who were SAE's here. Professors Ogden, Norton, Richards, and Battle guided the local toward its goal of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, a goal which was realized in September of 1949, when a charter was granted to Rho Epsilon Chi at the National Convention in Los Angeles, California.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon was first founded at the University of Alabama in March of 1856. From these humble beginnings, it has grown to a total of 127 active chapters in 36 states.

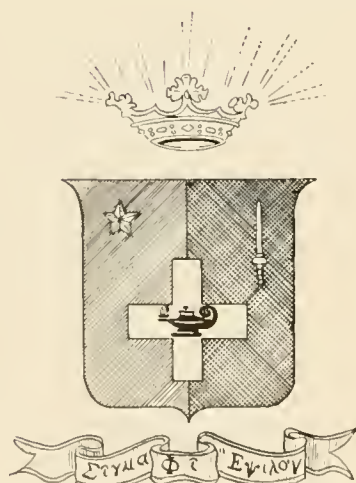

The colors of SAE are purple and gold, and the flower is the violet.

In May of 1949 the Mu Delta local fraternity of Florida Southern College was granted a charter by the national fraternity, Sigma Phi Epsilon. Well aware of the responsibilities this implied the new Florida Delta of Sigma Phi Epsilon accepted with pride the violet and the rose as their flowers and purple and red as the fraternity colors. Since its inception the Florida Delta chapter has participated most successfully in all phases of college social and athletic life.

Tau Epsilon Phi was founded on October 10, 1910, at Columbia University. The local which was known as Beta Delta Nu was formed and the Tau Rho chapter of Tau Epsilon Phi came to Florida Southern College on February 1, 1947. The colors of the national fraternity are lavender and white. The national fraternity has two flowers: Lilies and Violets.

On this campus the fraternity has come a long way in their effort to become the best in everything. They excelled in athletics as well as in social doings. Socially, the annual TEP-HOP was the largest social affair of the year on the Florida Southern Campus.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Tau Kappa Epsilon was founded at Illinois Wesleyan University in 1902. Since that time, it has grown into a national organization of more than eighty chapters in forty states. There are two other chapters in Florida, one at the University of Miami, and the other at the University of Florida.

Beta Tau Chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon was established here in November of 1948, and was the first chapter of TKE in Florida. The colors are cherry and gray, and the flower is the red carnation. Active in all phases of campus life the TKE's put on each year the "Red Carnation Ball", an all-campus dance, and have a Christmas party and outing for the Rose Keller Orphanage.

Theta Chi

Theta Chi fraternity, founded in 1856 at Norwich University is proud to claim an unbroken roll of 92 chapters and over 28,000 men.

The brilliant play of Rocky Pegg, who was awarded the Flambeau trophy as the outstanding player in the tournament, paced the Mocs to their first championship. For the second year, Gene Robbins, made the All-Conference as well as the All-State team. Check Terry, who also made All-State for the second year, was awarded a place on the second five. The steady play of Iron-Man Zovath, Lou Hufnagel, Bill Valentine, Tom Wooge, Dan O'Brien, Don Kumm, and Fiske Tolle contributed immeasurably to the success of the Mocs at the Championship tournament.

Junior Varsity

Coached by Jim Lease, the Baby Mocs had a very successful season, winning 13 games, and losing 3. They were semi-finalists in the Tampa Tribune Tournament.

LOOK AT THAT SMILE!

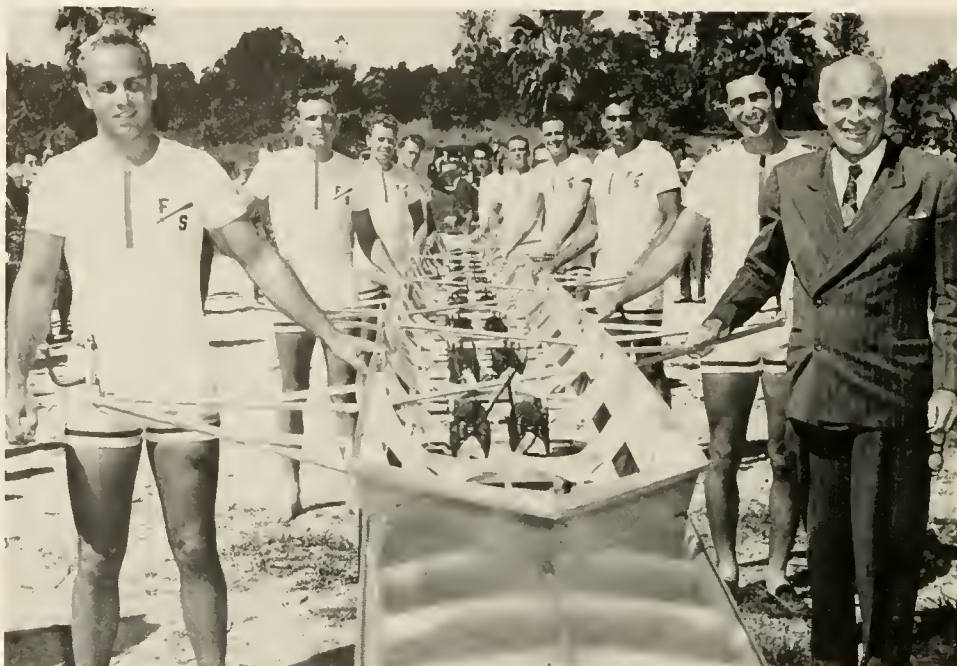

Yes, you would smile too if you had been the coach of the Dixie Conference Champions. Coach Morland directed the Mocs to their most successful cage season in the history of Florida Southern College. Along with the Conference Victory the "Mighty Mites" under the mentorship of Coach Morland defeated the University of Florida on their own court for the second straight year.

A TRADITION IS BORN

At a recent F.S.C. baseball game, Coach Morland mentioned to Mr. Morrison Williams, the proprietor of the College Terrace, that it would be nice to award a trophy of some sort to the outstanding athlete of the year. To Mr. Williams, who has been most generous in his part dealings with the students, came the idea of selling the "Moccasin Flip". In a very short time the money for the plaque was raised. The money for the "Most Outstanding Athlete" award will, in the future, be raised in a like manner.

WATER MOCCASINS

The year of 1948-49 will long be remembered as the first in which the trim, sleek shells bearing the Red and White of Florida Southern first knifed into the smooth water of Lake Hollingsworth. Within a few months the Water Moccasins of Roy Couch had compiled an enviable record in collegiate rowing circles, taking second honors in the state championships and in the Memorial Day Regatta in New York City.

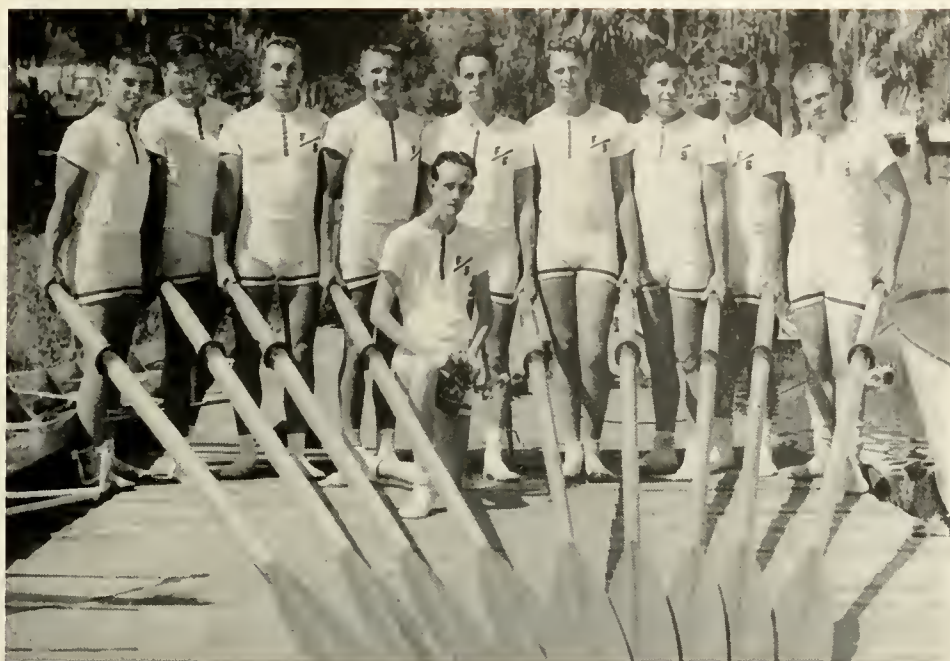

This year the Water-Mocs have been tabbed the crew to beat in the Poughkeepsie Regatta. Only a one second loss to Boston University has kept the Mocs from a perfect record. In February the Varsity and JV Water-Mocs swept the Gasparilla Regatta Carnival in Tampa and the following month garnered another double win in the Founders Week Regatta. In dual races with Dartmouth, LaSalle, and American International, the Water Mocs were victorious.

Junior Varsity

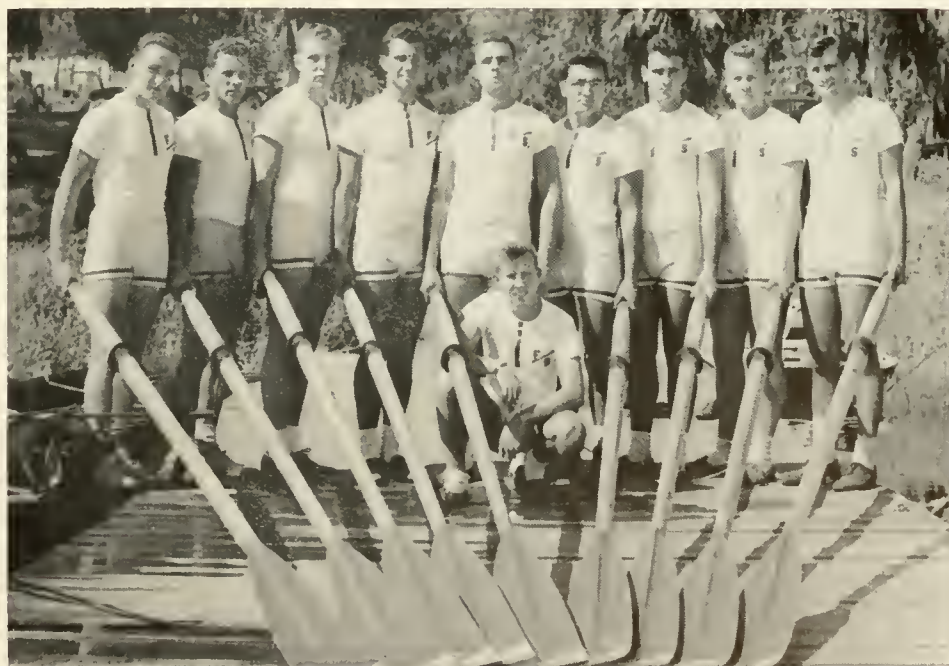

The JayVees have proved that even small Moccasins are deadly by winning nine out of eleven races.

Left to Right, Standing—Couch, Allen, Bloempoot, Kraczkowsky, VanArsdale, Thonneson, Ward, Choquette, Foster. Kneeling—Coxswain Kenney.

Working out in both Lake Hollingsworth and Lake Parker, the teams provide a colorful backdrop as they send their sleek shells skimming over the water. Coach Couch can be justly proud of the showing his boys are making after only three short years.

Freshman Crew

The Freshmen crew has had hard luck this year, but show great promise for future wins.

SHORT STOP

The 1949 season for the Moc baseball team was marked by a vast improvement over the preceeding two. In three short seasons Coach Granell fused together a team with plenty of sparkle and a desire to win.

With a fast outfield and the brilliant work of Johnny Green behind the plate, the excellent pitching of Spittel, Decker, Lease, and Ramsdell, the Moccasins were able to overcome their weakness with the willow. The ability of the entire team to come through in the clutches proved to be their most valuable asset.

BASEBALL

When the Seminoles came to Lakeland on May 20 to close the season, Stetson, FSU, and Southern were virtually tied for the title. The Moccasins needed both games to take the Conference title, whereas a single loss would have dropped the Mocs to third place behind Stetson. However, Coach Granell's men were not to be denied. Behind the masterful four hit pitching of Jack Spittel and the timely hitting of Joe Zovath, the Seminoles were set down to the tune of 3-1. Lee Ramsdell, another southpaw, duplicated Spittel's four hitter to nail down the championship for Southern. The clutch hitting of Joe Zovath again provided the margin of victory.

VARSITY GOLF

Absent: Leigh, Hinson, and Jones.*

With the return of George Winchell, Dixie Conference singles champion, the Moc netmen give promise of bettering their third place ranking gained at the Macon Tournament last year. Winchell, who took the title without dropping a single set, and teamed with Marsh Feld to capture the doubles crown, is ably supported by returning lettermen Gregg, Holland, and Owsley. The consistent play of Seymour, Lange, Kanrich, and Zotti give the Mocs a well-rounded team that should prove formidable to all opposing racqueteers.

Paced by Captain Bill O'Hara, Bill Leigh, Bob Hinson, and Jess Dees, the Mocs fielded a strong quartet that finished only three strokes off the medal score to win third place in a field of nine four-man teams at the State Inter-collegiate Championships. Catherine McKennon and Millard Jones rounded out Southern's regular team. The Mocs were again coached by Charles Collins, popular pro at Cleveland Heights.

Under the rigorous training schedule laid down by Coach Jim Lease, Southern's Flying Mocs were soon whipped into a formidable crew that shows promise in the coming season.

Carol Ann Battle, the lively mascot of the Cheerleader squad.

Southern's Cheerleaders

The lively cheerleaders of the Red and White for the year 1949-50 displayed the spirit that should have been typical of the student body as a whole. Always hustling, always trying, they often worked as hard at keeping school spirit at a lively tempo as the varsity squad did in winning the games.

Under Miss Elizabeth Roller's guidance, the Women's Intramural Board promotes athletic participation among the girls of the college. Members of the board are elected by their sororities and independent organizations and act as executive council for all sports other than those connected with class activities. Awards are presented for high scoring and individual achievement.
